COFE FORMEC IUFRO

JOINT CONFERENCE 2022

One Big Family Shaping Our Future Together

October 4 – 7, 2022
Corvallis, Oregon, U.S.A.

The Council on Forest Engineering (COFE), the International Symposium on Forest Mechanization (FORMEC), and the International Union of Forest Research Organizations (IUFRO) Division 3 will jointly meet in Corvallis, Oregon. This year's international meeting is the in-person forum on cutting-edge scientific research and innovative practices in forest operations and engineering.

You can attend the Conference in person or virtually. All participants will have access to live streaming of all scientific sessions (over 100 oral presentations), the conference proceedings, online networking, and links to recorded presentations, with all content available for two months.

Topics include:

- Digitalization and Automation
- Precision Technology
- Supply Chain and Transportation Logistics
- Business, Workforce and Education
- Ergonomics and Worker Safety
- Steep Slope Logging and Harvesting Systems
- More...

“One Big Family – Shaping Our Future Together!”

We are thrilled to bring researchers, students and professionals from around the world in person this year, after being affected by the COVID-19 pandemic the last two years. This year’s program will include over 130 technical presentations on cutting-edge scientific research and innovative practices in forest operations and engineering. The attendees will enjoy face-to-face networking opportunities, evening social events, and opportunities to collaborate and catch up. All presentations will be live-streamed and recorded for remote viewing. REGISTER TODAY!
